

Haal fest hits right note

Huntly musician Iona Fyfe took to the stage at Portsoy's 7th Haal folk festival. Iona and her band kicked-off the main festival concert on Saturday night, performing to a near sell-out audience. The festival ran over the first weekend in June and had a packed programme of traditional music, workshops, ceilidhs and concerts. Festival chairman Bob Philips said: "Overall the weekend was a tremendous success. The concerts especially were very popular. The bands were just first class, as expected. I think everyone left with a smile on their face."
