Singapore studies for graduate Neil

A YOUNG man from Huntly, whose studies took him to Singapore, has graduated.

Neil Mitchell, whose family live in Marquis Drive, graduated from the University of Strathclyde with a masters degree in electrical and electronic engineering with international study.

The course extended over five years and in year four Neil studied at Nanyang Technological University, where one of the biggest challenges was dealing with the intense heat.

For four years of his course, he received an Institute of Engineering Technology scholarship.

In September Neil will take up a graduate post with Mott MacDonald, a global engineering management and consultancy company in Glasgow, where his role will be instrumentation and control engineering with nuclear process.
